Horitca Corporate Headquarters

Project Description

A 63,000 square foot, two story office building to be used as the corporate headquarters for Florist Mutual Insurance - now called Horitca. Concrete tilt-up panels make up the exterior walls with steel beams and decking to support the second floor.

The exterior walls were painted with an elastomeric paint. They were accented with a celadon green banding and green window frames with silver reflective glass to harmonize with the surrounding landscape. A central two-story atrium lobby with a gabled greenhouse roof element fills the main lobby with light. The company's logo was also incorporated into the curtain wall on both sides of the atrium.
